PLANS TO TAKE OFFENSIVE

MR. ROOSEVELT ON WAR PROSPECTS

WASHINGTON, Monday.—The war will cost the United States nearly 100,000,000,000 dollars in 1943, President Roosevelt said in a broadcast to-night.

He said that in spite of setbacks Russia will hold out, and, with the help of the Allies, will ultimately drive every German from her soil. The importance of the Solomon Islands successes must not be overrated, or the significance of the Midway victory be underrated. "There we stopped a major Japanese offensive," he said.

"The aim of the European area is an offensive against Germany. There are at least a dozen different points at which attacks can be launched. You can rest assured that preparations are being made here and in Britain towards this purpose.

"The power of Germany must be broken on the battlefields of Europe, and the American people may be sure that we shall neglect none of the four theatres of war.

VITAL DECISIONS

"Certain vital military decisions have been made. In due time you will know what the decisions are—so will our enemies. I can say now that all these decisions are directed towards taking the offensive. To-day, exactly nine months after Pearl Harbour, we have sent overseas exactly three times more men than we transported to France in the first nine months of the World War.

He reviewed the war front by front, and said that the Germans are still unable to gain the smashing victory which almost a year ago Herr Hitler announced had been already achieved. The Russians are "killing more Germans and destroying more aeroplanes and tanks than are being smashed on any other front."

In the Pacific area one Japanese offensive had been stopped, "but the enemy still possesses great strength, is seeking the initiative, and will strike hard again." A desperate battle had been joined in Egypt for control of the area and domination of the Mediterranean and Indian Ocean. "We are well aware of our danger, but we are hopeful of the outcome."—(Reuter.)

JAPANESE LANDING REPELLED

FIGHTING IN SOLOMONS

WASHINGTON, Monday.—United States airmen have repelled further Japanese landing attempts at Guadalcanal, exacting heavy losses in troops and boats, the United States Navy Department announced to-night. Reinforcements for the Americans have been landed at Guadalcanal.—(Reuter.)

The text of the communiqué is:—"South Pacific—Since the capture by United States forces of the Guadalcanal and Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands on August 7, supplies and reinforcements have been landed, and the development of our shore positions and airfield at Guadalcanal has been steadily pressed.

"These operations have been opposed by enemy aircraft and submarines, and have not been accomplished without some cost. The United States destroyer Blue and the small transport Colhoun, whose sinkings were announced in a previous communiqué, were lost as a result of operations necessary to the supply of shore bases in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area.

"On September 3 our Grumman fighters and Douglas Dauntless dive-bombers attacked a landing party near San Jorge Island, about 65 miles north-west of the airfield on Guadalcanal. Loaded landing barges were strafed, causing heavy loss of life. Many of the small enemy boats engaged in this operation were sunk. On September 5 an air patrol sighted another landing party near the western end of Guadalcanal. Our air patrol and Curtiss army pursuit 'planes sunk three landing boats, damaged several others, and killed a large number of troops in these boats."—(Reuter.)

STABILISE PRICES AND WAGES

PRESIDENT'S REQUEST TO U.S. CONGRESS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT yesterday asked Congress to pass legislation specifically authorising him to stabilise the cost of living, including the price of all farm commodities.

"Our entire effort to hold the cost of living at the present level is now being sapped and undermined by further increases in farm prices and in wages, and by an ever-continuing pressure on prices, resulting from the rising purchasing power of our people," he said, adding that annual wage and salary disbursements had increased 78 per cent. — from about £10,925,000,000 in 1939 to about £18,750,000,000 in 1942.

He requested Congress to take action by October 1, and said that if Congress fails to act adequately, "I shall accept responsibility and I will act."

WILL ACT IF CONGRESS FAILS

WASHINGTON, Monday.—In his anti-inflation Message to Congress to-day President Roosevelt said: "Inaction on your part will leave me with the inescapable responsibility to the people of this country to see to it that the war effort is no longer imperilled by the threat of economic chaos."

Describing farm prices as the key to the inflation riddle, the President added that the purpose should be to hold them at parity or levels of recent date, whichever is higher. "We cannot hold the actual cost of food and clothing down to approximately the present level beyond October 1. No one could give assurances that living costs could be held down after that date."

The President reiterated his seven-point national economic programme, laid before Congress four months ago. "I pointed out then," he said, "that in order to succeed in our objective of stabilisation it was necessary to move on all seven fronts at the same time, but that two of them called for legislation before action could be taken. It was obvious then, and it is obvious now, that unless those two—namely, an adequate tax programme and a law permitting the fixing of price ceilings on farm products at parity prices—were realised the whole objective must fail.

"Neither of these two essential pieces of legislation has as yet been enacted into law. That delay has now reached the point of danger to our whole economy. However, we are carrying out by executive action the other parts of the seven-point programme which did not require Congressional action."

NATIONAL INCOME

Stating that the economic position was being sapped by the rise in farm prices and wages and the pressure on prices exerted by increased purchasing power, he continued: "The national income has been increasing since January 1, 1941, at the average rate of 2 per cent. each month. This purchasing power now exceeds by an estimated twenty billions the amount of goods which will be available for purchase by civilians this year." Discussing this continual threat to disrupt the whole price structure, the President said that the Bureau of Labour statistics showed recently that, whereas less than one-fourth of all families in the United States received as much as 2,500 dollars—about £625—in 1941, more than one-third would have 2,500 dollars, or more, in 1942.

"The Congress must realise that unless the existing control over farm prices is strengthened we must abandon our efforts to stabilise wages and salaries and the cost of living. If that occurs, workers and farmers alike will not only suffer a reduction in real income, but will bring upon themselves and the nation the unparalleled disaster of unchecked inflation."

"What is needed, therefore, is an over-all stabilisation of prices, salaries, wages and profits. That is necessary to the continued production of 'planes and tanks and ships and guns at the present constantly increasing rate. The co-operation and self-restraint of the whole nation will be required to stabilise the cost of living; it cannot be maintained without heavy taxes on everyone, except persons with very low incomes. We can rightfully expect the fullest co-operation and self-restraint only if the tax burden is being fairly levied. This means that we must eliminate the tax exemption of interest on State and local securities and other special privileges or loopholes in our tax law. It means that in the higher income scales the tax rate should be such as to give the practical equivalent of a top limit on an individual's net income after taxes approximating to 25,000 dollars (about £6,250)."

SENATOR'S PROTEST

Senator Norris (Nebraska) said that he hoped Congress would act immediately to provide over-all ceilings "in time to prevent a break between Congress and the President."

Senator Taft (Ohio) challenged as "revolutionary and dangerous" the doctrine which, he said, was laid down in the message that the President could in war-time abrogate laws passed by Congress. "It is, in fact, an assertion that the laws of the country in war-time can be made by the President by Executive Order," he said.—(Reuter.)

Senator La Follette said: "The President has virtually placed a pistol at the head of Congress."

Senator McNary—"A notable document, proceeding generally in the right direction."

Mr. Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives, has summoned members to return to Washington next week to consider the President's request for quick action to secure anti-inflation legislation. The House has been in informal recess, and by resuming on September 14, members will have little more than a fortnight to meet the President's "deadline."—(Reuter.)

FEWER COUPONS FOR UNIFORMS

NEW SYSTEM IN FORCE

Following conferences between the Department of Supplies and representatives of various organisations, a scheme has been prepared varying the effects of clothes rationing on persons who have to wear uniform.

Where employers issue uniforms to workers they need not, in future, collect more than a proportion of the appropriate number of coupons, and the Department of Supplies will make up the balance. The proportion varies with the class of employment. In the majority of cases only quarter of the usual number of coupons need be contributed by the employé, and in no instance will the employé's contribution be more than half the appropriate number of coupons. The scheme embraces all classes of uniformed employés other than waitresses and those in domestic employment.

Hospital nurses will require to provide only one-quarter of the full number of coupons for uniforms, the maximum number which may be taken from a nurse in a year being 39, and from any other worker 26. Additional coupons will be issued to those who have to buy their own uniforms, such as private nurses, waiters, members of dance bands and orchestras, etc.

Evening dress is treated as uniform for members of dance bands and orchestras, and modern dress is treated as uniform in the case of professional actors, for whom additional coupons will also be available. Protective clothing is outside the scheme, except where it forms part of an issue of a uniform. It is understood, however, that the Department hopes to make an announcement shortly about facilities for obtaining protective clothing under the clothes rationing scheme.

Where a uniform was due to be issued prior to the 9th June, the date when rationing was introduced, but was held up for some reason outside the control of the worker, it may now be delivered without requiring the worker to surrender coupons.

LONDON ALERT

An alert was sounded in the London area before midnight last night, and within a minute or two gunfire was heard, and flares were dropped from attacking 'planes, which were fired at from anti-aircraft defences. Another 'plane dropped flares over a town in one of the adjoining counties.

The "raiders passed" sounded after some time. It was London's seventeenth alert this year. Bombs were reported in two areas in the home counties.

THE SUBMARINE WAR

ALEXANDRIA, Monday. — A communiqué from British Mediterranean Fleet H.Q. to-day stated:—"It is officially announced that our submarines, during the past few weeks, have taken a very heavy toll of shipping on Axis supply lines in the Eastern Mediterranean. These losses are in addition to the success of the R.A.F. and naval aircraft on similar targets. Ships definitely sunk included five large and two medium-sized vessels, while during the same period two large, two medium, and one small ship were damaged by our submarines."—(Associated Press.)

Herr Hitler's H.Q. announced yesterday:—"In hard battles, German U-boats have sunk seventeen ships, totalling 108,000 tons, sailing in convoy and alone off the east coast of America, in the Atlantic and off the west coast of Africa."—(Reuter.)

BREAD TO COST MORE

PENNY ON LOAF

THE price of flour will be increased from 52s. 6d. per sack of 280lb. to 60s. per sack on September 14, and from September 21 the price of bread will be advanced to 1s. 1d. for the 4lb. loaf, delivered, and 1s. when sold over the counter at the bakers' shops.

White flour will not be produced.

The Government has also decided to maintain the subsidy to flour and bread prices to the full extent provided in the past cereal year. The estimated total cost of the subsidy in the present year is a little less than two million pounds.

In the current financial year the taxpayer will have to contribute more than £1,600,000 towards the cost of flour and bread. In addition, about £300,000, accumulated as a reserve, is being contributed to help in keeping flour prices as low as possible.

In the case of flour, the increase is attributable to the new guaranteed price of 50s. per barrel for Irish wheat, which this year will benefit the farmers by 10s. a barrel for wheat delivered to the millers.

Although the millers are to pay the new price of 50s. for Irish wheat coming on the market from September 1st, the new flour price will not operate until the 14th inst., in view of the fact that millers hold a stock of about two weeks, which first must be disposed of.

The new price is applicable to the 100 per cent. flour. Apart from the fact that a whiter flour would require considerably more wheat, the price also would be substantially higher than that of the 100 per cent. flour.

FOOD VOUCHERS

Special provision, having regard to the increased prices, is being made for persons entitled to food vouchers under the Food Vouchers Scheme by increasing by 50 per cent. the quantity of bread allowed on each voucher. It is not practicable to issue 3lbs. of bread per week, and the method by which the increased allowance will be granted will be by the issue in alternate weeks of vouchers for 2lbs. and for 4lbs. of bread, providing 6lbs. per fortnight instead of 4lbs., the allowance made at present.

In the case of recipients of food vouchers the increased allowance of bread more than offsets the increased cost of bread consequent on the rise in price.

The prices and weights of fancy bread never were controlled until recently, and now all such bread must be sold in units of one pound. Following the increase in the price of flour, fancy bread prices also are going up. They will be as follows:—1s. 2½d. per 4lb. loaf, 7½d. per 2lb. loaf, 3¾d. per 1lb. loaf. These prices will also operate from the 21st of September.

There will be certain exceptions—such as proprietary brands, soda bread and wrapped, sliced pan loaves—to the Fancy Bread Price Order. Fancy bread sold in units of less than 8ozs. already is excluded.

GOODS ACROSS BORDER

DROGHEDA MAN FINED £1,050

A penalty of £1,050, treble the value of the goods, was imposed at Drogheda yesterday by District Justice Goff on James Lochrin, Bullring, who was prosecuted by the Revenue Commissioners for knowingly dealing with goods with intent to evade the export prohibitions on them.

Mr. J. B. Hamill, State Solicitor, said the goods were consigned in fifteen cases to the Rev. Father Ward, P.P., Glasslough, County Monaghan, who denied having anything to do with them. They were found to contain toys, toy games, fountain pen sets, tea cups, plates, rolls of wall-paper, electric cookers and rings, buckets, religious pictures, statues, and other articles. When two special inquiry officers called on Mr. Lochrin, they were informed that in February a man with a Northern accent ordered a varied assortment of goods. He was reluctant to give his name, and neither Mr. James Lochrin or his son, Mr. Owen Lochrin, pressed him. He informed them that the goods were to be sent to Father Ward, and he paid £350 in cash, including £10 for packing and carriage.

THOUGHT IT GENUINE

Joyce Topley, stationmaster at Glasslough, swore to informing Joseph Daly, the priest's servant, of the arrival of the goods. Daly took some cases, and returned stating that they were not for Father Ward.

Owen Lochrin, son of the defendant, said he was responsible for putting the deal through, and, cross-examined by Mr. Hamill, said it was a retailing transaction, even though it was for £350. Father Ward might want the articles for a bazaar or something like that. He thought it was a genuine transaction.

James Lochrin, the defendant, said he carried on a large retail and wholesale business even before the war, and sold large quantities in Louth, Meath and Cavan before the war, even to customers he never saw. It was no real advantage to him to sell the goods, as some were old stock and could easily be sold in Eire. He had previously sold a large amount of similar goods to a parish priest.

The Justice, fixing the penalty at £1,050, recommended a very substantial reduction. Six months would have to be served in default. He made the recommendation on the grounds that it was not a formal conspiracy. He fixed recognisances at £1,000 and two sureties of £500.

MODEST RESCUER

A remarkable double rescue was effected at Dunmore, East, Co. Waterford, by an Irish Army lieutenant, who declined to disclose his identity. Two Kerry girls—Miss Dympne Enright (18) and Miss Margaret O'Sullivan (21)—now on a cycling tour, got into difficulties while bathing. Hearing their cries for help, the officer, who was cycling, at once dismounted, and, divesting himself only of his tunic and boots, swam to their assistance. Grasping each by the head, he succeeded by using the back stroke in bringing them ashore together. Included in the crowd, which by this time had gathered at the scene, were members of the local Red Cross Society, who applied artificial respiration, after which the girls, who had previously been in a condition of extreme exhaustion, recovered. They were able later to continue their tour. The rescuer is stated to be the possessor of several swimming prizes, won at various competitions in Eire.

FEWER CHILDREN IN EIRE

WHAT CENSUS REVEALS

FEWER women marry in Eire than in any other country, yet the birth-rate is much higher; the proportion of children in this country is about normal compared with other countries, yet between 1926 and 1936 the number of children under 15 years fell by over 47,000 and the population under 21 years of age by 69,000.

In the general report of the Census of Population taken in 1936, and published to-day by the Department of Industry and Commerce, this fall in the number of young children is attributed to a decline in the fertility of married women at the reproductive ages, a decline which was not the result of an increase in the average age of these women. The decline in fertility was much greater among the rural than among the town population.

This report, which is the second of its kind to be published (the first having been published in 1934, consisting of census figures taken in 1926), forms a complete analysis of volumes already published, on such subjects as housing, the Irish language, industries and occupations, religions, and birthplaces, etc.

HOUSING

The figures showing housing conditions have been compiled on the Equivalent Adult Concept, which is considered to give a more realistic measurement of overcrowding, and enables a fairer comparison to be made between different areas than the actual system.

A very marked improvement has been effected in the housing of the population between 1926 and 1936; housing conditions were much better in Eire (in 1936) than in Scotland (in 1931), but worse than in England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

In rural areas housing is best in Wexford, with only 6 per cent. of the population with housing densities (equivalent adult) in excess of two persons per room, and Donegal and Mayo are worst with 29 per cent. and 23 per cent. respectively. Without exception, the percentage overcrowded has declined in every county.

In the section dealing with ages and conjugal conditions of the population, occupations and industries, an important feature is the high proportion of young persons (under twenty years of age) in Eire, as compared with other countries, who were not yet employed. On the other hand, the proportions of persons aged sixty-five years and over who had retired were remarkably low.

Between 1926 and 1936 the number of persons aged fourteen-nineteen years who were unoccupied declined by 9 per cent., while the number occupied declined by only 3.4 per cent., so that some improvement was effected. The number of persons under twenty years of age in agricultural occupations fell by 10,943, or 12 per cent., while the number in other productive occupations increased by 8,478, or 43.9 per cent.

IRISH SPEAKERS

In 1936 the number of persons aged three years and over who could speak Irish was 666,601, as compared with 540,802 Irish speakers in the same class in 1836.

The losses to the language after leaving school are still heavy, but the fall in the proportion who could speak Irish, from 57.6 per cent. at ages ten-fourteen to 45.3 per cent., at ages fifteen-nineteen, may be regarded as exaggerated, because a person who could speak the language with reasonable proficiency at school would scarcely have been unable to speak it two or three years later; with little practice the faculty could be revived. It is estimated that, of the 23,116 Irish speakers aged ten-fourteen in 1926, 27.7 per cent. lost the language through disuse during the ten years.

Considerable increases were recorded in the proportions of those who could speak Irish in those occupations in which a knowledge of Irish could be made, more or less, essential, such as teachers, Civil Service officials and clerks, typists, postmen and Post Office assistants, etc.

EL ALAMEIN FRONT QUIET

LIKE A WEEK AGO

EL ALAMEIN FRONT, Monday.—Reuter's Correspondent here says: "Except that the German Shock-troops Division remains in the area of our southern minefields, covered by a light screen of tanks and anti-tank guns, the El Alamein front is now as it was before Marshal Rommel launched his attack a week ago. During the last few hours there has been a sufficient thickening of the Axis armour and motor transport to suggest that Marshal Rommel intends to hold on to this slight territorial gain, chief feature of which is the Himeimat ridge, dominating the country around it.

"But this does not discount the fact that the Eighth Army is 'sitting pretty' as much around Himeimat as in their organised defence positions to the north, which the Afrika Korps failed to penetrate at any point. Allied light armoured forces can harass the enemy much the same as throughout last week's battle. The New Zealanders last night sent out patrols over some ground which British and Dominion troops gained in the south towards the close of the enemy withdrawal. Later the Empire troops withdrew. Rommel's loss of, and damage to, so much of his armour and, what is equally important, so much of his supplies, has greatly weakened his chances."—(Reuter.)

THE PARK DEER

An N.S.P.C.A. inspector, equipped with binoculars, made a tour of the deer herds at large in the Phœnix Park at the week-end to see if any of them were suffering from injuries received in the corral on Thursday and Friday of last week.

It was feared that some of them might have received gashes or wounds from a glancing bullet inflicted during the shooting. The inspector spent a whole day stalking the many different groups in the Park, examining them through the binoculars and watching them in motion, but could see no sign of any of them being injured.

There are many large bucks still at large in the Park, and it is likely that another attempt will be made to round them up towards the end of this week.

So far, the Mansion House Committee has not had any reply from Mr. Seán T. O'Kelly to their request that he should receive a deputation in his capacity of Minister for Finance and also as a deputy for Dublin.

RUSSIAN GAINS AT STALINGRAD

BOTH SIDES BRING UP RESERVES

HOLDING the panzer thrusts against Stalingrad's south-western approaches and gaining ground at some points to the north, the Russian armies are still defying the German attempt to sever the line between Southern and Central Russia.

The city's fate probably hangs now on whether more reserves can be brought up in sufficient time and in sufficient number, with air reinforcements powerful enough to break down the Luftwaffe's present mastery.

Berlin's claim to Novorossisk remains unconfirmed, and Moscow says that defensive battles are continuing in the area of the naval base.

The Germans are still no nearer the Grozny oilfields, and no further crossings of the Terek River near Mozdok have been reported.—(Reuter.)

ADVANCE ON GROZNY HELD

Reuter's Stockholm Correspondent says that Marshal Timoshenko's throwing in of powerful reserves at the eleventh hour has not only stemmed the Germans' onslaught on Stalingrad, but at some points has pushed them back. "Berlin admitted to-day that north-west of the city the Russians have increased the intensity of their counter-attacks. At least ten infantry divisions and seven armoured brigades were hurled against the Axis on this front, forcing them on the defensive. The Russians have also held the most dangerous thrusts south of the city.

"Fighting along the whole Stalingrad front now appears to have reached the peak of violence—it cannot be long before either the attackers or the defenders begin to crack. The issue still hangs on whether Marshal Timoshenko can bring up sufficient reserves in time, and whether the Red Air Force can be strengthened enough to counteract the present German air mastery.

"In the North Caucasus the Russians are still attempting to wipe out the forces which succeeded in crossing the Terek River near Mozdok. There is evidence that the Germans are beginning to feel the strain of fighting in this country—quite different from the wide steppes in which they have manœuvred so far.

"On the central front, Marshal Zhukov is keeping up a steady barrage against the German strong points, using his artillery with devastating effect. One German report speaks of an artillery barrage at the rate of one shell every ten seconds, alternating with bombing and low-level machine-gunning. Unexpectedly heavy rain is hindering Zhukov's advance at Rzhev, says a Moscow despatch. It has also prevented the Germans from getting away a good part of their material which is bogged, especially the heavy guns."

GERMAN REPORT

LONDON, Monday.—The German communiqué to-day, after repeating the claim that Novorossisk had been captured, continued:—"In the battle for Stalingrad, German and Rumanian troops gained further ground in heavy fighting. From the north the enemy renewed his heavy counter-attacks to relieve pressure, supported by strong infantry and tank units against the German positions. All the attacks were repulsed with heavy casualties. One hundred and eight enemy tanks were destroyed. Tank and motorised infantry divisions, supported by aircraft and anti-aircraft formations, played a decisive part. Day and night attacks were made by the Luftwaffe on the town area. In addition, aerodromes east of the Volga were bombed during the night.

"North-west of Medyn repeated enemy attacks were repulsed, partly in a counter-thrust. In night bombing attacks, aerodromes north-west of Moscow and enemy supply traffic were effectively hit. South of Lake Ilmen, local Soviet attacks failed. South of Lake Ladoga several enemy attacks were repulsed with heavy casualties. In a counter-attack, enemy forces were surrounded and annihilated. The Soviets lost more than 1,200 men killed. On Lake Ladoga a patrol boat and a tug were sunk by bomb hits. Another patrol boat and three tugs were damaged."—(Reuter.)

German Wireless to-day quoted a German High Command claim that 46 Red Army divisions and 93 brigades were smashed in the fighting between May 1 and August 31.

The German advance in the Caucasus was continuing, the Radio claimed. Soviet attacks, supported by 40 tanks, were repulsed, ten tanks being destroyed.—(A.P.)

NOVOROSSISK

LONDON, Monday.—The German High Command said to-night that on the Taman Peninsula mopping-up of the dispersed enemy has been concluded. "The Russians carried out desperate counter-attacks to recapture Novorossisk. All broke down. The enemy withdrew and were effectively attacked by waves of destroyer-planes. On the Terek front the Germans gained ground after stubborn resistance. A relief thrust of Soviet infantry, supported by 40 tanks, was repelled."—(Reuter.)

MOSCOW, Monday.—To-night's Soviet communiqué says: "During September 7th our troops fought fierce engagements with the enemy west and south-west of Stalingrad, as well as in the areas of Novorossisk and Mozdok." The supplement states that in the Barents Sea the Soviet Air Force sank an enemy transport of 5,000 tons. West of Stalingrad Soviet troops fought heavy engagements with the enemy. One unit repelled four successive attacks and then was forced to retreat to new positions. In another sector west of Stalingrad the German infantry, supported by tanks, attacked a Soviet position. The attack was repelled, and one company of German troops wiped out. "In the area of Novorossisk Soviet troops fought fierce engagements with numerically superior forces. Despite heavy losses the enemy wedged into our positions." In the area of Mozdok fighting continued on the southern bank of the river. By a surprise blow our troops dislodged the Germans from an inhabited locality, destroyed an artillery battery, and smashed the headquarters of a German unit.—(Reuter.)

BLUE TROOPS IN REDLAND

BY AN IRISH TIMES REPORTER.

SOUTH OF IRELAND, Monday.

THE Blues have made a successful crossing of the river that divides the two forces, but their crossing was not very seriously disputed. Nevertheless, platoon after platoon, company after company, battalion after battalion, the soldiers waded the river at one point, while a quarter of a mile above them Bren gun carriers charged into the shallow water, sending up a semi-circular cascade of water. Most of the men waded across naked from feet to waist, but the advance parties came over as they had marched, because any enemy resistance would be theirs to deal with on the far bank, and one can fight somewhat better, particularly on manœuvres, with the lower limbs clothed. The first small party over the river carried one end of a rope with them, and when they had crossed they lay on the rope like a tug-of-war team, while those following supported themselves by leaning on the rope. This speeded up matters, and the advance parties were soon dashing up the side road leading to the highway on the north side of the river to liquidate any Red patrols that might have attempted to dispute the crossing. The rest poured across the seventy yards wide stream in a continuous line of green torsoes and white legs, with here and there a machine-gun "pram" almost completely under water, or a bicycle high and dry on a man's shoulder. Transport and armoured squadrons then came up from behind the lines, and at midnight tackled the job of building a bridge over which the armoured cars sped across. The building of the bridge was a fight with the river. The pontoons were launched and floated down to their positions between the shore bays, and quickly the seven girders spanning the river, and resting on the pontoons, were run into position, and in a short time the planks were lying across the girders, and the engineers were locking the planks in position. With the same easy speed thousands of Blue troops came across, and, this being a mimic war, I almost wished that a serious resistance had been offered by the Reds. I cannot get away from the impression that these fellows who are crossing the river, risking being drowned, while shouting soldierly witticisms to one another, are really thinking that it is all too tame, that if that aeroplane over our heads were loaded with bombs, and the will to kill, the spice of this strenuous task would be stronger.

The crossing of the armoured vehicles was made in the light of lorry headlamps, as the Blue Commander knew by that time that his crossing was not going to be seriously disputed, and he sacrificed secrecy for speed. After crossing the river the Blue Army deployed without meeting any but minor resistance, as when two Red enemy armoured cars were destroyed by hand grenades. It is certain, however, that soon their presence in Redland will be challenged.

BOMBING RAID ON ROTTERDAM

DUISBURG REVISITED

ATTACKS on the shipyards at Rotterdam in daylight yesterday and Sunday night, raids on Duisburg, Germany's biggest inland port, were the chief features of yesterday's air news.

Headquarters, European Theatre of Operations, United States Army and the Air Ministry, last night stated:—"United States Army Air Force Flying Fortresses (B 17s) to-day bombed the Schiedam shipyards at Rotterdam and the railway yards at Utrecht. Squadrons of Royal Air Force, Dominion and Allied fighters carried out diversionary sweeps and escorted the Fortresses. The Fortresses encountered heavy fighter opposition while they were over enemy occupied territory, and destroyed twelve enemy fighters. Many others were probably destroyed or damaged. From this operation one fighter is missing."

FIRES AT DUISBURG

A strong force of British bombers on Sunday night attacked objectives at Duisburg and elsewhere in the Ruhr. "Our reconnaissance aircraft were over the Ruhr this morning, and report that large fires were still burning," said yesterday's Air Ministry communiqué, which added: "Aircraft of the Fighter Command carried out offensive patrols over enemy-occupied territory. Coastal Command aircraft attacked enemy shipping off the Frisian Islands and in the Channel. Eight aircraft of the Bomber Command and one of the Coastal Command are missing from the night's operations."

Duisburg the largest inland port in Europe, is an important centre of German communications and war industry. The British losses of eight aircraft are described as small in view of the force used. They make the total for the last four heavy raids on Germany only 30. Duisburg's key targets include the main locks of the Rhine-Herne Canal, the main-line railway bridge over the Rhine, a mile-long railway bridge over the dock area and the Hochfeldt railway junction. The principal industrial concern is the great Demag steel and iron works, whose many war products include sections of U-boats. There are also copper and tin works and a mass of storage dumps. Duisburg was last raided on the night of August 6.—(Press Association.)

The Air Ministry last night stated:—

"Single aircraft of Bomber Command, without loss, bombed Emden, Bremerhaven and other targets in Western Germany early this morning.

"It is now known that a third enemy fighter was destroyed by our fighters during offensive operations over Northern France on Saturday, September 5."—(Press Association.)

LATE NEWS

AT NOVOROSSISK

Rome radio early to-day reported powerful Russian counter-attacks at Novorossisk, says Reuter. It was claimed that all the attacks were repulsed.

LAST NIGHT'S COMET

A comet or meteor hurtled across the sky at half-past ten last night, writes an Irish Times reporter. It was brighter than the brightest star, had a red tail, and left a wake of sparks spreading fanwise and lingering against a dark background.

The telephone rang, and many people wanted to describe what they had seen. One man said the whole heavens were lighted up with flashes like sheet-lightning.

SAILOR ROBS TAXI-MAN

A sailor who hailed a Londonderry taxi, yesterday, held-up the driver at a lonely spot, robbed him of £4, and drove away leaving him stranded. The fare asked the driver, Michael Doherty, to drive him to Boomhall, near the city. On the way he said: "Stop, or I'll blow your brains out," and pointed what appeared to be a revolver from his coat pocket. The taxi was found abandoned.

Phœnix Worthy Champions

By P. D. MacWEENEY.

THE exciting race for the Senior League championship ended on Saturday in favour of Phœnix, the defeat of Leinster by Pembroke preventing the possibility of a tie, which at one time looked to be a likely conclusion.

I think that Phœnix have deserved their honour, and, taking the season as a whole, I would class them as just about the best team in Dublin. They started rather indifferently, a fact which was not altogether surprising, as a number of their players are members of the Old Belvedere Rugby XV., and were playing the winter game right up to the start of the cricket campaign. They suffered an early and heavy defeat at the hands of Merrion, and later on Leinster outplayed them completely, but their only other reverse was an unexpected one at the hands of Y.M.C.A., their batsmen failing at what appeared to be a comparatively easy task.

They beat Leinster twice, both times after splendid matches in the Cup and League, and their defeat by Trinity in the Cup final had a distinct element of bad luck. Facing a total of over 250, Phœnix seemed to have the match in their hands on the second evening, but two errors of judgment in running between the wickets lost them their great opportunity, and the University got home —a vastly relieved team.

Last Saturday they finished on the top note in beating Clontarf, and the strong points of the team were clearly shown by the form of J. C. Boucher and D. R. Pigot, each of whom scored freely for the opening stand, and then proceeded to take nine of the wickets between them. These two have had a splendid season, and they have been given magnificent support by F. and P. Quinn and O. O'Connell. Always capable of scoring runs quickly, Phœnix were much more consistent this season than for some years previously.

Leinster were not as well balanced as their rivals, their batting strength far outweighing their bowling possibilities; but they retained their reputation as great fighters, and made the most of their slender resources in attack. Their defeat by Pembroke on Saturday came as a surprise, in view of the fact that the total they were facing, 144, seemed well within their scope; but when the sun shone into the faces of the batsmen from behind the pavilion it made the job exceedingly difficult.

W. Aylward, pitching his slows well up, made the most of the opportunity, and after Lambert had left with the score at 51 for two wickets, nobody was able to stay with Burke. As usual with Pembroke, the Williams brothers played a vital part in the victory. M. Williams made some useful runs and bowled splendidly to take the first five wickets, while T. C. Williams made the top score of the side.

Y.M.C.A. and Merrion, each with a possibility of securing the top position, had a tremendously keen battle, which ended in a draw, Merrion being six runs behind with their last pair at the wicket. Thus Y.M.C.A. tied for second place, and they, perhaps, deserve more commendation than anyone else; for they have had a hard time for many years, generally occupying the bottom or second-last position.

With the weather proving kind at the week-ends, this was the best season in Dublin for a long time past, and revived public interest considerably in the game.

DANGEROUS SLUM HOUSES

PLEA FOR PURER MILK

DUBLIN CORPORATION, last night, passed a resolution requesting the City Manager to apply to the Minister for Local Government and Public Health for an Order compelling the pasteurisation of all milk sold for human consumption in the Dublin sanitary district.

Alderman A. Byrne, T.D., who proposed the motion, accepted an addendum suggested by the Lord Mayor (Alderman Peadar Doyle) to ask for a report on the matter from the Medical Officer of Health.

Dr. J. Hannigan, T.D., stated that the position in Dublin in regard to milk was that less that 5 per cent. came from tubercular-tested cows, less than 60 per cent. was pasteurised, and at least 35 per cent. neither was pasteurised nor came from tubercle-free herds. He was informed that at least 35 per cent. of this milk would not be allowed to be sold in any city where proper public health regulations were enforced.

Mr. Cosgrave said that if what had been suggested was carried out, the price of milk would rise.

Mrs. Chenevix, who supported the motion, said that a great deal of the disease in children had been caused by impure milk. She would protest against any increase in the price of milk.

DANGER IN SLUMS

Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D., warned the Corporation that if heavy traffic continued in some streets in the slum areas in the city, houses would topple over and people would be killed.

He had just moved a motion requesting a report from the Public Health Officer regarding the number of tenements condemned and still occupied, and requesting also a statement from the City Manager of the proposals, if any, for the provision of suitable flats or cottages at reasonable rents for those now occupying dangerous or insanitary dwellings.

In Gloucester Diamond, Gloucester place, Gloucester street and in other streets in the locality, he said, there were dwellings of a most unsuitable and shocking type. Unfortunate tenants were paying fancy rents for dangerous and unhealthy rooms. In a house that he visited in Gardiner street the back wall was split from top to bottom, and he saw a child handing a hockey stick out through it to another child in the yard. The house trembled when anyone walked on the stairs and he greatly feared that the vibration of passing lorries would bring down the houses on the heads of the tenants. He suggested that Marlborough House should be sold, rented or given to the Corporation to be used as a clearance depôt, for the immediate relief of those tenants.

Alderman B. Conway, supporting the motion, spoke of the tenements in the dock area as the worst dens in Europe.

M. O'Maolain suggested that if the names of the owners of those tenements were published it might shame them into action.

The motion was passed and referred to the Housing Committee.

RECENT ELECTIONS

Dr. J. Hannigan moved that a special committee of the Corporation be appointed to investigate the conduct of the recent municipal elections and the complaints relating to it.

The motion referred to "the widespread dissatisfaction generally expressed" in relation to the conduct of the elections, and to "the numerous complaints from individuals who, under one pretext or another, were obstructed from carrying out their statutory right to vote."

Dr. Hannigan related instances of what he described as irregularities that, he declared, had occurred at various booths because of ignorance, and said: "We have more than sufficient evidence to secure a new election, at any rate in Number 4 area, though, as far as the Labour Party is concerned, the result was most satisfactory."

Mr. Breen seconded the motion.

Mr. F. G. Burke said that he had travelled to upwards of fifteen booths, and in not one single place had he received any complaint whatever. He did not agree with the Labour Party's bringing in isolated instances and trying to make major issues out of them.

Mr. B. Butler said that there had been no complaints from Number 5 Area, and he believed that generally the Labour Party was exaggerating.

Mr. C. Breathnach, T.D., said that he had received no complaints at all. There might have been some small irregularities, but not irregularities that would justify the motion.

Mrs. O'Shea-Leamy said there were no complaints in Number 2 Area.

On a division, 13 voted for the motion and 13 against. The Lord Mayor gave his casting vote for the motion, and it was passed.

The voting was:—For—The Lord Mayor, Alderman Conway, Alderman O'Sullivan, Messrs. W. H. Beirne, Kiernan, Colgan, Brack, O Maolain, Breen, Dr. Hannigan, Senator Healy, Mr. Browne, Miss Chenevix—13.

Against—Alderman A. Byrne, T.D.; Messrs. Benson, Dockrell, McCann, Brady, Mrs. O'Shea-Leamy, Messrs. Breathnach, Staines, J. Cahill, Coghlan, B. Butler, Burke, T. Byrne—13.

DUN LAOGHAIRE

Mr. M. J. O'Rourke, Chairman, and Miss Louie Bennett were appointed representatives of the Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation to the Municipal Authorities' Association at the meeting of the Corporation last night in the Town Hall, Dun Laoghaire.

It was decided to approach the authorities concerned with a suggestion that shelters should be provided for waiting passengers at the 'bus termini on the front, and also that shelters be provided for waiting mail boat passengers, and that a request be made for greater expedition in the examination of passengers' passports.

The Chairman said that among other matters which he would bring before the Corporation would be a proposal to appoint a public relations officer in the Borough.

LONDON NOTES

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Record trading profits are shown in the accounts of South African Breweries, Ltd., for the year to March 31. Owing, however, to the heavy increase in the taxation liability, the carry forward had to be drawn upon in order to maintain the dividend at the 17½ p.c., tax free, paid in the previous year. Profits before taxation reached £275,126, or £193,321 more than in the previous year. Taxation rose by £222,776 to £932,234. Thus the net profit was £29,455 less at £340,892. The dividend on the £1,000,000 of 5 p.c. Pref. Stock requires £34,375, and after payment of the final Ord. dividend of 12½ p.c., £130,051 is carried forward, against £141,625 brought in. The company owns breweries in all the principal towns of the Union, while it also controls South African Hotels, Ltd., and the Union Glass Company, Ltd., which keep the breweries and others supplied with bottles.

REDUCING THE EQUITY

An important alteration in the capital structure of Associated Gas and Water Undertakings is to be proposed at an extraordinary general meeting to be held on October 1 next. At present the £3,500,000 of authorised capital is divided into £1,750,000 Pref. shares, and £1,750,000 of Ord. shares. All the shares are to be converted into stock. The directors consider that the ultimate equity might, with advantage, be reduced to smaller proportions by the conversion of 40 p.c. of each existing holding of Ord. shares into Deferred Stock. After the division, the Ord. will be entitled to rank for a 5 p.c. Non-Cumulative dividend. Then the Deferred Stock will receive a Non-Cumulative 6 p.c. dividend, any surplus profits will be divided between the Ord. and Deferred Stock, the additional dividend on the Deferred Stock to be twice the rate paid on the Ord. Stock. The changes, it is suggested, will give the proprietors a better prospect of receiving an increase in total dividends, as compared with the 5 p.c. which has been paid on the Ord. Shares since the inception of the company. On the other hand, if they desire to sell, they will have what is in effect a well secured 5 p.c. Preferred Participating Ord. Stock and a Deferred Stock, which, by the comparative smallness of the authorised issue—£500,000—should have considerable attractions both for present and future prospects.

PROFITABLE COAL

Among the few coal companies which have paid regular and increasing dividends the Bolsover Colliery Company stands high. Its six coalfields are situated in Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire, and have an output of over 6,000,000 tons per annum. Its dividends for the past three years have been a regular 10 p.c., with bonuses of 5 p.c. added each year. It has just announced the maintenance of its interim dividend at 5½ p.c. Interim dividends may not be conclusive evidence that a company is maintaining its profits, but they do suggest that things are going satisfactorily. In the past ten years the distribution on the Ord. capital has risen by stages from 7½ p.c. to the present total of 15 p.c. This was earned last year with a margin of about 8 p.c., which was utilised by increasing the development reserve by £60,000 and the general reserve by £50,000. There thus appears to be every reason for anticipating the maintenance of the total distribution at last year's figure.

ROAD TRANSPORT

Investors in road transport concerns have become somewhat anxious regarding the possible effect upon earnings caused by the coming sweeping cuts in road and rail travel. In the case of the railways there is little to fear because of the guaranteed rental which the railways receive from the Government for the war period. The railways are, of course, interested in road transport, but the revenue derived from that source, which is additional to the guaranteed rental from the Government, is of no special importance to the railway stockholder. Other concerns, such as British Electric Traction, Thomas Tilling, Ltd., and Tilling and British Automobile Traction, depend very largely for their revenue on road transport concerns. Though heavy cuts in road transport have already been made, the companies engaged in the industry have felt very little adverse effect. The object of further cuts is to economise in petrol and rubber, but the road services, like the railways, are carrying far heavier loads than in peacetime. While there is no appreciable change in prices of Transport issues, it is felt that any chance of increased dividends must be deferred until after the war.

YESTERDAY'S FEATURES

With the war news from Egypt better, and a more hopeful view of the situation in Russia, sentiment on the London Stock Exchange yesterday took a better turn. Though business was of rather small dimensions, prices rose in practically every section. Gilt-edged securities were steady at Friday's levels, but in Foreign Bonds, Brazilians made gains of up to 25/-. Egyptian also were better. British Railways were quite a good market, with the junior stocks especially in demand. Great Western and L.M.S. Ord. were each 5/- up at 46½ and 23½ respectively. L.N.E. Pref. Ord. gained ½ at 5, and Southern Def. Ord. a similar amount at 17½. Canadian Pacific also shared in the recovery, gaining 1[15]/32 at 10[29]/32. Most sections of the Industrial market were on the upgrade. In Breweries, Guinness were best with a rise of 1/6, to 105/-, while Distillers were up 3d. at 79/3.

Increased strength was displayed by the Shipping group, where P. and O. Def. were prominent with a jump of 10½d. to 30/7½. Cunards, Union Castle and B.I. Holdings were also improved. In the Rayon section, British Celanese were good in anticipation of a scheme for dealing with the arrears of dividend on the Second Pref. shares. Courtaulds also were up a trifle, but Textiles were not improved. Imperials and Gallaher Ord. were good in Tobaccos, the former rising 1[29] to 6[17]/32, and the latter ½ at 5[15]/16. Woolworths jumped 1/3 to 57/- in Stores. Harrods also being good.

Among Builders, Associated Cement gained 7½d. to 81/10½, and London Brick 1/3 at 51/3. While others in the Industrial market to go ahead were Cable Ord. with a gain of 1[29] to 6[29]/32, Brazilian Traction, 1[15] up at 14½, Dunlop Rubber and Lever Unilever.

In the Mining market, Kaffirs were better. West Reefs, West Wits, and Blyvoor all showed improvements. Anglo-Iranian led a recovery in Oils with a gain of 1/3 at 48/9. Burmah, Shell Mexican Eagle and Leaseholds joined in the upward movement; while, among Rubbers, Anglo-Dutch, Kuala Lumpur and U. S. Betong gained a little.

DUBLIN EXCHANGE

Public interest on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was mainly confined to Irish securities, and markets presented a busier appearance. Good support was again in evidence, and prices, especially among Industrials, continued to move in favour of holders.

Home Government Funds were still favoured, and the Second National Loan gained 7/6 at 117½, the Fourth Loan 10/- at 106½, and 4 per cent. Irred Bonds hardened to 116½. Other issues maintained their recent firmness; 3½ per cent. War Loan eased a shade to 106⅞.

Munster and Leinsters were raised several pence to 34/- and 28/- after payment of the final Ord. dividend of 12½ p.c., £130,051 is carried forward, against £141,625 brought in. The company owns breweries in all the principal towns of the Union, while it also controls South African Hotels, Ltd., and the Union Glass Company, Ltd., which keep the breweries and others supplied with bottles.

Cement Ord. made further headway to 32/9, but the Deb. left a point to 108, and Ever Ready (Ireland) Ord. declined to 7/7½. Dublin (S.) City Markets Ord. hardened to 8½, and J. Halliday Ord. to 10/-.

Irish Cinema Ord. improved to 3/-, and the Pref. were held for a rise of 2/6 at 17/6. Irish Times 1st Pref. spurted 2/- to 27/-, and Sunbeam Wolsey Ord. jumped 1/8 to 42/3. Other issues, where dealt in, held up well.

Coats Ord. were unchanged at 37/3, but Courtaulds eased to 38/1½. Lever Bros. Ord. declined to 30/3, and Erinoid Ord. quoted 11/1½.

NO SURPRISES IN ELM PARK TENNIS

The singles matches in the autumn hard court tournament at Elm Park yesterday were uneventful, and there was nothing of particular note in them. The junior champion, J. D. Hackett, lost a set to another youngster, C. Boden, but qualified for the last eight; and J. C. Davis, runner-up to Hackett at Fitzwilliam, had a hard struggle against W. F. Reid in the second round. Had H. Morris and H. Kennedy kept their heads on the important shots, they might have accomplished a big surprise in the men's doubles; for they led C. A. Kemp and E. H. Maynard 5-4 and 6-5 in the first set and 4-1 in the second, but they could not hold on to these leads. Results:—

Men's Singles Championship. — First Round—D. Mahony beat J. Gilthorpe—6-1, 6-4, 6-2; H. M. Wood beat C. Leopold—6-8, 6-3, 6-4.

Second Round—R. F. Egan beat T. Gargan—6-3, 6-2; C. Davis beat W. F. Reid—6-4, 2-6, 8-6; P. D. MacWeeney beat J. Devlin—6-2, 4-6, 7-5; A. G. White beat D. Mahony—6-4, 6-1, 6-0; Jo. Wilson beat R. Egan—7-5, 4-6, 8-6; R. T. Motyer beat W. Gillespie—6-1, 6-2.

Third Round—J. D. Hackett beat C. Boden—6-3, 6-8, 6-1.

Women's Singles.—First Round—Miss A. Blayney beat Miss M. Harding—6-2, 6-3. Second Round—Miss E. Lombard beat Miss P. Bourke—6-1, 6-0; Miss B. Good beat Miss A. Blayney—6-4, 4-2 (retired).

Men's Doubles Championship—First Round—R. F. Egan and A. E. Fannin beat E. O'Kelly and N. Brennan—6-3, 6-0; C. A. Kemp and E. H. Maynard beat H. Kennedy and H. Morris—9-7, 6-4; P. D. MacWeeney and P. W. Peard beat T. Gargan and R. Motyer—6-0, 6-3.

TRYING TO BE FUNNY

"Men laugh at women, except when they're in love with them. Women laugh at men, even when they are in love with them," said Lynn Doyle, when he spoke on "Trying to be Funny," at yesterday's weekly luncheon meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club in the Gresham Hotel.

If they were to believe the French novelists, said the lecturer, the French were a horrid lot. English writers were easier on their own nation, and, if they laugh at it, they do so good-naturedly. Irish writers chastised their fellow-countrymen with scorpions. All the good-natured writing about Ireland has been done by British writers—and nothing else annoys the Irish so much. "Don't let us as a nation be prevented from laughing," said Lynn Doyle. "Don't let historians be able to say that the decay of laughter in Ireland began with the foundation of Eire."

A vote of thanks to the speaker was proposed by Mr. Charles Murphy, and seconded by Mr. A. G. Bruty, who spoke of the late Mr. John D. Collins as a distinguished journalist, who, "though not a member of Rotary, was a Rotarian at heart."

A Timely Warning

The people of this country, whose economy is based on the agricultural industry, will be keenly interested in the latest message that President Roosevelt has sent to Congress. Some time ago the American President formulated a seven-point programme, designed to control the economy of the United States in such a way as to avoid the pitfall of general inflation. Five of these points have been put into force by executive action; but the other two require Congressional authority. One of them is the imposition of heavy taxes, and the other the fixing of price ceilings on farm products. Congress has shown itself quite willing to increase taxation; but the fixing of farm prices is a vastly different matter. It must be remembered that the majority of Senators and Members of the House of Representatives come from farming constituencies. Consequently, they hesitate to interfere with agricultural prices; but President Roosevelt has confronted them now with what is tantamount to an ultimatum. If Congress refuses, or neglects to take the necessary steps before October 1st, the President will accept full responsibility, and will act by himself. He demands specific authority from Congress to stabilise the cost of living in the United States, with particular reference to farm prices. In order to avoid what he describes as "the unparalleled disaster" of unchecked inflation, he declares that an over-all stabilisation of prices, salaries, wages, and profits is essential. Since the outbreak of war the whole economy of the United States has been upset. The amount of consumer goods has fallen steeply as the production of war material of all kinds has increased. Furthermore, earnings in terms of money have risen, with the inevitable result that prices have tended to rise. In 1941, according to the President, less than one-fourth of all the families in the United States had incomes of more than 2,500 dollars a year; now the proportion is more than one-third of the families. As a result of this increase in the national income, President Roosevelt estimates that the people's purchasing power this year will exceed by some twenty billion dollars the amount of available goods for civilian consumption.

He proposes to check the threatened inflation, on the one hand, by drastic increases in general taxation, whereby, for example, no individual citizen of the United States will be allowed to have a net income—after his taxes have been paid—of more than 25,000 dollars a year. On the other hand, the President argues that none of these measures will be of the least avail so long as farm prices remain uncontrolled. Annual wages and salaries in the United States have risen in three years from £10,925,000,000 to £18,750,000,000—almost by 78 per cent., and the farmers have been making the most of their chances. All the Government's efforts, declares President Roosevelt, have been "sapped and undermined" by continuous increases in the prices of farm products, which have exerted an ever-increasing pressure on prices in general. In these circumstances, the President has decided to take immediate action. He asserts that inflation in the United States would prejudice the people's determination to win the war, and, being convinced that the key to the problem lies in farm prices, proposes to check the evil at its source. Comparison between the United States and our own little country would be ridiculous; but the problem there and here differs only in degree. In Ireland, too, purchasing power has been increasing steadily since the war. There is a variety of reasons for this phenomenon into which we need not enter at the moment. The fact is that there is far more loose money in the country than there was three years ago; and the inevitable result has been a steady rise in prices. Here, as in the United States, the ultimate controller of prices is the farmer. Certain commodities have been taken under official control; but, in our opinion, the prices of many essentials is scandalously high. It was inevitable that the farmers should demand higher prices for their wheat and other crops; but the news, which we print this morning, that a further increase in bread prices is at hand, ought to give the Government pause. For most practical purposes wages in Ireland have been pegged, whereas food prices, despite all the Government's efforts, continue to rise. Sooner or later the problem of inflation will have to be faced seriously. Otherwise Ireland will find herself in the position of the United States, and the last state of our farmers will be considerably worse than the first.

The Fuel Problem

Major Gwilym Lloyd George, the British Minister of Fuel and Power, possesses much of his father's old downrightness in speech. He was talking in London last week to an audience which may not have been composed of miners or mine-owners, but his words were directed with the utmost plainness to those very important members of the cross-Channel community. Fuel, he said, is essential to the British "war effort"; more of it must be produced, and less of it must be consumed. An effort—albeit an effort which has not met with whole-hearted approval—has been made to reduce consumption; Mr. Churchill's Government, if it has done nothing else, has recommended the people to confine themselves to a certain yearly limit in regard to the use of fuel. There are ominous whispers, however, concerning the present condition of the mines—whispers which certain periodicals elaborate to shouts. It has been alleged that certain mine-owners are not so patriotic as they might be: since the war began they have been working the worst seams of coal, in order that the better seam may be left for sale at enhanced prices when the war reaches its end. It is argued, on more carefully documented grounds, that the Government has not been altogether without blame, inasmuch as it has permitted some tens of thousands of young, strong and practised miners to be drafted into the armed forces of the Crown at a time when they might be employed to better effect in the production of coal. Either or both of these charges may be true. Major Lloyd George did not expend speech on either of them, but—again after the manner of his father—preferred to confine himself to a general point, which was that "production ought to be greater." This is not a matter of unimportance to us in Ireland. This country, for good or ill, is dependent to a very considerable degree upon British coal; and, if the British production of coal falls below the British requirements, Ireland is bound to suffer. She already has experienced the effects of British under-production: Irish hearths have been cold during the summer, and will be colder, as we fear, during the approaching winter. The gas supply of the city of Dublin has been reduced to eminently inconvenient limits for some months past, and may be reduced even more severely in the months to come, while drastic restrictions have been imposed upon the consumption of electricity as a result of the nation's dependence to an unsuspectedly large extent upon the importation of coal. It is natural, in all these circumstances, that intelligent Irishmen should follow the fortunes and the proceedings of Major Gwilym Lloyd George's Fuel Ministry with the closest attention, and that every one of his efforts to secure either greater production or greater economy should be regarded almost as domestic news. There is a strong belief across the Channel that he proposes to introduce a rationing scheme for fuel in the near future. The notion is not popular there, and will be resisted, as it has been resisted already, with the utmost bitterness; but it is no direct business of us in Ireland—except inasmuch as it involves our own comfort or distress in the coming months.

DUBLIN THEATRES NEW PLAY AT ABBEY

Elizabeth Connor's new comedy, "An Apple a Day," is, as its title suggests, about a doctor. He was a Corkman who came to Carrigmahon to be the medical officer for the district. Six others, all chosen, too, by the Local Appointments Commission, had preceded him, but none of them had stayed very long. The son of the retiring medical officer, Dr. Burke, was the people's choice, and they were determined to have him and no other. All kinds of things happened to the unwanted doctors. The same sort of reception is ready for Dr. Gavin Barry when he arrives, but he meets the situation with his own quiet determination, and, although he is made rather uncomfortable for a while, in an amusing way, he just stays.

The comedy is loosely strung around the incidents which emerge from the clash of his character with this unfriendly environment. It is sometimes very loosely strung, indeed, and scarcely holds together; but the author has a gift for humorous characterisations and good lines, and what might have been the reality of the situation is dissolved into a series of comic scenes, which carry the play along successfully. Cyril Cusack, as the young doctor, has a part that suits him well, and he remains so quietly happy in it to the very end that one almost believes that it all could have happened.

With a few of the stock figures of Abbey comedy, including a good Maureen Delaney part, a T.D. by F. J. McCormack, given in his very best manner; a typical Michael Dolan part, and a nice bit of characterisation by Ria Mooney, there are three parts for Eileen Crowe, Brid Ni Loingaigh, and Sheila Manahan, which have slightly unusual moments in them, and were well done. Liam Redmond, too, as the kindly Dr. Burke, made a good deal out of two short appearances.

The efficient production was by Frank Dermody, and the perfectly-suitable setting by Michael Clarke.

Royal.—Miss Maureen Power, the young Waterford singer, has captured the hearts of Dublin music-lovers, and last night in the Theatre Royal a large audience clamoured for her after she had sung a number of excerpts from opera to round off an excellent show. In a programme of music and comedy, rarely bettered on the Royal stage, she proved an outstanding artiste. Mike Nolan and Noel Purcell looked after the comedy, and there were songs from Miss Olive Briggs, Miss Jennie O'Toole and Peggy Dell, whose old ballads produced good community singing. "Take it or Leave it" remains an attractive feature in the hands of Eddie Byrne, and the Violettes, with Jimmy Campbell and the band, provide a rousing finale. The film is "My Favourite Blonde."

Gaiety.—Jimmy O'Dea's successful show, "And So To Laugh," entered its sixth week last night, and is still drawing large and appreciative audiences. May Devitt's singing and Mary Poswolsky's dancing, in addition to numerous scenes with Jimmy, make this a show which all Dubliners ought to see—and see again.

Olympia—"French Without Tears" is a light, farcical comedy which requires very careful handling, much more careful than Carl Clopet's youthful company was able to give it. Added to that, it has been seen in Dublin quite recently as a film and as a play performed by a London company. The result was that many of the "wise-cracks" seemed lost upon the audience, and the whole play showed a tendency to drag at times. J. H. Edwin, as the Commander, gave the most enjoyable performance of the evening, retaining, even in the drunk scene, a quiet authenticity that was lacking in most of the others. Wilfrid Brambell came a close second for the acting honours in the part of the hearty Brian Curtis. Tony Walsh — the male lead — seemed several decades too young for the part, and both he and Diana Romney spoiled the effect of the play by assuming a sort of mock Oxford drawl, which degenerated at times into an irritating monotone. Maurice Selwyn made a most amusing Monsieur Maingot, and the cast also included Deirdre Gallagan, Robert Dawson, Desmond O'Connor and Ginette Wadell.

FUNERAL
MR. JOHN D. COLLINS

The funeral took place yesterday to Glasnevin Cemetery, after the celebration of Requiem Mass in St. Columba's, Church by the Rev. J. Redmond, C.C., of Mr. John D. Collins, 63 Iona road, a former member of the Reporting Staff of the Irish Times. The chief mourner was Miss K. Mahony (niece).

The attendance also included: Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister for Finance; Messrs. John Murphy, Maurice Linnane, T. O'Donnell, W. H. Smith and M. Hickey, George Dunne, R. M. Smyllie, A. M. Montgomery, M. S. Chambers, J. R. Wright, C. E. Redmond, Kevin M. Collins, R. J. Dowling and H. S. Kennedy, E. F. MacSweeney, J. Murphy and G. H. Gray, M. J. Spillane, R. J. Kelly and P. O'Donnell, H. Callaghan, T. F. O'Driscoll, P. J. Hart, J. C. Lawlor and W. B. Doyle. The prayers at the graveside were said by the Very Rev. M. Murphy, P.P., St. Columba's, Iona road.

MINISTER RETURNS

Mr. Michael MacWhite, Minister at Rome, left Ireland at the week-end on his way back to his post, after a two months' vacation. He is flying to Lisbon, and thence going on to Rome. Mr. MacWhite and his wife arrived in Ireland about the beginning of July, and spent a short holiday in Adare with their son, Eoin, who is a student at U.C.D. Most of the succeeding two months he divided between Dublin and Kerry, where he stayed at Killarney and Waterville.

"I greatly enjoyed my holiday," he told an Irish Times reporter before he left, "and I am going back much refreshed. It was about four years since I had a real holiday, and I was more than ready for it."

THE LANGUAGE

The first serious attempt to teach Irish in Dublin was on the foundation of the Ard-Craobh 48 years ago, and this oldest branch of the Gaelic League was also responsible for the foundation of the Feis Ceoil, said Professor Eoin MacNeill at the opening meeting of the year at 39 Parnell square, Dublin, last night.

Mr. de Valera, a member for the past 20 years, sent the following message: "A nation-wide organisation is essential, with no other objective than the restoration of the language. Here is a common ground on which groups otherwise differing can wholeheartedly unite. Let us resolve as a nation that we shall make this effort and bring back the enthusiasm that characterised the first couple of decades of the Gaelic League."

Among those present was Mrs. de Valera, Dr. S. MacCanna, Sean Og Mac Gearailt, and "An Buachaillin Buidhe" also spoke. P. O Maille presided.

FASHION NEWS OF THE MONTH by the Lux News Scous

MAKE THIS NEW STYLE
Magyar Blouse
FROM AN OLD PRINTED SUMMER FROCK

IF you're a "suit girl," you'll love this attractive Magyar style blouse. And you can have it simply by making over an old printed summer frock!

Notice the new cut-in-one sleeve and the loose—almost "baggy"—shape. It's a change from the classic shirt blouse we're so used to.

First, unpick the seams of the frock and wash the material.

Use Lux, of course—if you can get it. Lux is a good investment because it is so gentle—it won't harm the fabric and so your blouse will last longer.

Whip up a good lather in lukewarm water, using 1 level tablespoonful of Lux to 1 quart of water (a Lux bowl goes a long way, you know!). Put in the pieces of material and squeeze gently. Do not rub; that shortens the life of a fabric. Rinse afterwards in lukewarm water.

When nearly dry, iron the material on the wrong side and you'll have a lovely fresh print all ready to make into your new Magyar blouse.

Lux is a Lever product of course—made in Dublin.

Little Girl's Appetite Improves

Dear Sir,
My little girl takes Cod Liver Oil Tablets. They are doing her very good and she eats much better, thanks to you.
Yours, etc., (Mrs.) M. T.

Make Her Healthy, Happy and Robust
JESSELS TABLETS WILL HELP HER.
For weak, puny, undeveloped children—especially those that have Rickets and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones—Cod Liver Oil is the one supreme medicine; nothing like it. But it is nasty and repulsive, and nearly always upsets children's stomachs, so now all good dietitists sell JESSELS COD LIVER OIL EXTRACT TABLETS at 1/6 and 3/6 a box. They are sugar-coated, and children love them as they do candy. One box gained 11 lbs. in 7 weeks, and is now healthy and happy. Thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sold only by Chemists at 1/3 and 2/6 per box.
Artweg.

How to Stop False Teeth Slipping

If your plate is apt to slip or drop, do what 60,000 Dentists advise the world over. Sprinkle your plate with Dr. Wernet's Powder in the morning. Dr. Wernet's keeps plates firm and comfortable all day long and forms a soft alkaline cushion which prevents Acid mouth and Gum soreness. Try Dr. Wernet's to-day. You will be delighted. From all chemists.
